About Our Company

Corporate Valuations is a Northwest business that is fully devoted to the appraisal of closely held business interests. The company is headquartered in Portland, Oregon however; its appraisers have provided valuation services for companies both nationally and internationally.

EXPERTISE

When combined, CVI's three senior appraisers have more than 60 years experience with the valuation of private and public companies. All of CVI's appraisers are Accredited Senior Appraisers of the American Society of Appraisers (ASA). The ASA designation is the most prestigious business valuation accreditation. Since the company's inception in 1983, the professional team at CVI has taught courses and seminars pertaining to business valuation, performed presentations at national conferences, written and published articles, and participated in writing a definitive textbook on business appraisal. Our appraisers regularly attend industry conferences, cutting-edge educational events, and discussions in order to stay informed about the ever-changing regulations and advisement concerning the various types of business valuation.

FULL SERVICE

Our professionals have valued businesses in a myriad of industries for purposes ranging from litigation to tax matters, to actual transactions. Appraisal output can range anywhere from a verbal opinion to a highly detailed, fully documented report. In particular, CVI's team has the ability to appraise complex industrial properties, ranging from paper mills to steel mills, to any other multi-million or multi-billion dollar installation. CVI's professionals have also appraised intangible assets such as customer lists, patents, trademarks, secret processes, etc. under both fair market value and fair value standards.

PROFESSIONALISM

To maintain their accreditation with the ASA, our professionals must follow the Uniform Standards of Professional Appraisal Practice (USPAP); obtain at least 20 hours of continuing education each year; and subscribe to, and be bound by, stringent professional ethics.

RELATIONSHIP ORIENTED

Our professionals strive to become your trusted adviser; not just your providers for appraisal services. We want every single one of our clients to feel comfortable with calling upon us to consult on a variety of valuation and asset-related issues. Services Provided

BUSINESS VALUATION

More than ever, business owners, managers and fiduciaries are recognizing the need for competent valuations of the business enterprise. When a business valuation is necessary, it is vital to have a thoroughly documented appraisal report prepared by a knowledgeable, professionally qualified appraiser.

Complex laws and court interpretations of the laws require greater attention to fiduciary responsibilities by business professionals; especially where potential litigation may be involved. There are many diverse reasons for a business appraisal. The following are those most frequently encountered: litigation or arbitration; gift, estate and inheritance taxes; bankruptcy and reorganization; acquisition and sales, partnerships or corporate dissolution; employee stock ownership plans (ESOPs); estate planning, obtaining financing; and allocation of value.

PROJECT MANAGEMENT

Complex engagements like purchase price allocations and large estate valuations may require the appraisal of assets across several disciplines. CVI's experts have managed a variety of large projects including purchase price allocations for large industrial installations, as well as estates comprised of several related companies. Our professionals can recommend and/or source and hire appraisal experts specialized in the valuation of real estate, timber, machinery and equipment, and personal property.

FINANCIAL REPORTING

Our team assists clients in financial valuations for a number of circumstances; the most common of which are described below.

Intangible Assets - As businesses continue to become more service based, intangible assets have increased in both recognition and value. CVI's experts are well versed in the approaches and methods used to determine value for intangible assets specific to both Fair Value and Fair Market Value standards.

Stock Based Compensation - The valuation of stock options relies on several assumptions made by both top management and the appraiser. An independent business valuation firm, such as CVI, can help by determining the Fair Value of the underlying stock and by collaborating with management to develop reasonable and supportable assumptions. Our experts perform numerous stock option valuation engagements through which our methodology, due diligence and experience often leads to a significantly expedited review process.

Purchase Price Allocation - In general, the purpose of retaining a business valuation firm in relation to a purchase price allocation is to help identify and independently value appropriate intangible assets. The value of the identified assets is then combined with the firm's other assets and considered against liabilities and price paid in order to recognize the net residual amount to be designated as goodwill.

CVI's professionals have led several purchase price allocation engagements. Purchase price allocations are often complex transactions that, if not managed properly, can become excessively expensive. Here at CVI, we take a collaborative approach by fostering communication between our appraisers, auditors, management and other professionals; thereby avoiding costly delays and/or misunderstandings.

EXPERT TESTIMONY

Corporate Valuations brings both credibility and impartiality to situations in which a company's value is in dispute. The CVI team of appraisers has over 60 years experience in providing expert analysis for tax issues, marital dissolutions, shareholder or partner disputes, lost profits or damages, and disputes pertaining to intangible assets. Our firm's strong reputation for accurate and objective valuations has helped us to become well respected in the legal community. Each of CVI's appraisers has a strong working knowledge of the applicable legal framework and valuation standards that apply to each case.

Each member of the CVI team has undergone rigorous testimonial training and through experience, has developed the skills necessary to provide a jury, or other person(s) responsible for determining facts in legal proceedings, with accurate and understandable appraisals. CVI's appraisers provide expert testimony throughout the United States in U.S. Tax Court, U.S. District Court, state courts, arbitrations hearings, and administrative bodies.

We have a proven track record of success in providing expert testimony and in many cases, CVI's appraisals have lead to settlements without requiring our clients to undergo the exhausting and costly court trials.

CONSULTING AND REVIEW

Consulting - Corporate Valuations brings our experience and expertise to the table in order to provide our clients with an informed perspective that is both impartial and independent. With today's heightened sensitivity to potential conflicts-of-interest between directors, trustees, shareholders and management; the importance of having an independent and well-respected company provide advice cannot be overemphasized.

Whether starting a new company, re-capitalizing an existing one, making a purchase, forming an Employee Stock Options Plan (ESOP) or an Employee Stock Options Trust (ESOT), doing succession planning, or selling out; CVI's experts help to ensure a smooth transaction. Our professionals have advised business owners, CEOs, CFOs, brokers, attorneys, accountants, and trustees about the effect that transactions like those listed above have on valuation. Getting a valuation professional involved helps to avoid costly mistakes and provides the parties with the information necessary to make informed decisions.

Appraisal Review - An appraisal review is often referred to as an evaluation of an existing appraisal. CVI's team has the experience and training necessary to provide a critical analysis of, and make suggestions on, reports prepared by other appraisers. If your situation requires an independent third party reviewer, or if you just want to make sure that the value you are acting on is accurate, you need an experienced, accredited appraiser. Our experts will review your report and tables and can help to explain the process and methodology behind the value that was determined. Our experience, independence and expertise translate into your piece of mind and will allow you to perform your business transactions without having to question whether the value at hand is appropriate.

SECTION D

Why Hire an Accredited Appraiser?

The goal of a business appraisal can be stated very simply: setting a dollar figure on the value of a business. Getting to that final step however is anything but simple.

Business valuations involve a complex series of investigations, extensive research of the company, the economy, and the industry in which it operates; followed by careful analysis of the information obtained. The financial affairs of the company must be fully analyzed. Data on transactions must be collected, analyzed and correlated to the subject business. Finally, a business valuation requires a healthy measure of professional judgment. An accredited appraiser has undergone the training and experience necessary to determine which valuation approaches have greater merit, which questions to ask to get the whole story, and which answers carry the greatest weight.

Business appraisal is an inexact science. There are no canned formulas, no hard and fast rules, and no automatic answers. The appraiser's judgment often has a major impact on the valuation conclusion. Informed judgment comes only from years of experience, training and full-time dedication to the profession.

Appraisal specialists are continuously exposed to a broad spectrum of industries, company sizes and states of financial health, and routinely take such factors into account in the process of valuation. Specialists are able to keep abreast of recent court rulings, current requirements and practices of the Internal Revenue Service and other agencies, and the methodology, format and language that each agency is accustomed to.

The depth of experience that a specialist brings can be particularly important if litigation is involved. The valuation conclusion of the opposing sides may sometimes be very different and, often times, large sums of money rest on the qualifications of the appraiser and the thoroughness of his presentation. Because of their experience, specialists can provide a more accurate and cost-effective appraisal than someone who does business appraisals as a sideline profession.

The need for a professional business appraisal may arise only once in the lifetime of a business. However, when it does, the reason is usually pivotal, and the outcome is undoubtedly critical.

If it's worth having your business valuation done right, it's worth hiring a specialist to do it.

WHAT YOU CAN EXPECT FROM US

- The appraiser will consider all of the relevant approaches to value and will use the appropriate approach for the valuation of the asset or assets
- The appropriate market place and highest and best use of the asset or assets will be considered
